Sorry About the Ads—Comments Are Back!

written by CresthavenRPG Guru | April 5, 2025

Hey Cresthaven community,

If you've visited the site recently and were greeted by some unexpected ads in the comments section… yeah, we noticed too—and we're not happy about it.

It turns out the third-party comment service we were using suddenly started serving ads without notice. That's not something we're okay with. Cresthaven RPG has always been about keeping things clean, accessible, and distraction-free, so we've made the switch back to good ol' WordPress-native comments.

What Does This Mean?

Comments are back—and ad-free! You can once again leave feedback, share ideas, ask questions, or just chat about all things Cresthaven right here on the site, just like before.

We love hearing from you. Whether it's about rules clarifications, character builds, cool monsters you've run, or house rules you're experimenting with—your input helps shape the game for everyone.

Need a Conversation Starter?

Let's kick things off with a fun writing prompt:

"A young scribe uncovers a spell scroll written in a forgotten dialect—one that shouldn't exist in their part of the world. What happens next?"

Drop your ideas in the comments—we'd love to read what you come up with!

Thanks for sticking with us, and sorry again for the ad hiccup. Now that things are back on track, we're excited to hear from you!

— The Cresthaven Team